

Todd Uterstaedt

Todd Uterstaedt is Co-Founder and CEO of Baker & Daboll, a leading boutique executive coaching firm, where he is also a Senior Executive Coach. After serving as a decorated U.S. Army Intelligence Officer and successful Vice President of a global organizational development company, Todd helped to build Baker & Daboll into a high performing team of exceptional executive coaches supporting hundreds of leaders in organizations like Nucor, Procter & Gamble, Johnson & Johnson, Macy's, Fifth Third Bank, Ball Aerospace, Miami University, United Federal Credit Union, The Cape Cod Five Cents Savings Bank, and The United States Air Force.

As an in-demand executive coach, entrepreneur, and speaker, Todd is described as "Invaluable," "Top-notch," "The best," and possessing "A great ability to connect, touch, move, and inspire you." He is also the host of the popular global podcast, "From Founder To CEO," where he interviews fast-growth Founders about the mistakes and mishaps that have transformed them from Founder to CEO. Todd has been profiled, interviewed, and quoted in many media outlets such as PBS Television, Wall Street Journal Radio, The Wall Street Journal, Businessweek, Inc. Magazine, CNNMoney.com, American City Business Journals and many publications in Cincinnati, Ohio, where the company is headquartered.

As an expert in executive influence, he earned his BA in Communication Arts from Hofstra University in New York and his MS in Organizational Leadership from Mount St. Joseph University in Cincinnati. He speaks on the topics of entrepreneurial leadership, executive influence, ethical leadership, and overcoming leadership derailment.

BOA and COE, Executive Coaching and Development

Co-Founder and CEO of Baker & Daboll

MS, Organizational Leadership

Host of podcast, "From Founder to CEO"

US Army Veteran